

Charles Lynch, JD

Charlie Lynch is a semi-retired attorney who does consulting work in the employee benefits field. His areas of expertise are group life and health insurance, self-insured health plans and ERISA-related issues. Before becoming a consultant, Charlie spent most of his career in the Law Department of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. His most recent position there was as Associate General Counsel, specializing in group products and issues.

He's a former AICP General Counsel and is currently the Mid-Atlantic Chapter's Regional Director. He's also been a member of the AICP's Bylaws, Chapter Relations, Conference Planning and Nominating Committees. In his spare time, Charlie's a docent at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

Charlie has a Bachelor's degree in Economics from Boston College and earned his law degree at the Harvard Law School.